Importance: High

Flag Status: Flagged

Good Morning MPC!

As you know, our college will undergo a site visit for the purposes of reaffirmation of accreditation in October 2016. As part of our ongoing preparations for that visit, we will be hosting a series of open fora on our accreditation work with members of the Accreditation Steering Committee. We will share the strengths, points of pride, and plans for improvement that have emerged from the Self-Evaluation Report, and discuss the steps we can take together as we prepare to welcome the evaluation team to our campus next fall.

Everyone on campus has an important role to in the preparations and successful completion of the visit. Our objective is to help everyone at MPC feel informed, prepared, and confident. We will be hosting multiple fora to accommodate a der range of schedules. If you cannot attend, however, there will be more opportunities for you to engage with campus preparations during the spring semester.

Fora will be held:

Tues, 12/1 -- 4-5pm -- LF 103

Wed, 12/2 -- 10:30-11:30am -- PS 103

Wed, 12/2 -- 2:30-3:30pm -- LF 103

We hope to see you there! Thank you again for your continued engagement with these important efforts.

Follow Up Flag: Follow up
Flag Status: Flagged

Dear MPC,

At their last meeting, the MPC Board of Trustees voted unanimously to approve a multi-year contract for Dr. Steve Crow.

Steve joins MPC after serving as Vice President of Administrative and Information Services at College of the Siskiyous and Vice President of Business and Financial Affairs at Southwestern College. Steve began his career in education as a faculty member and has earned a doctorate degree in Educational Leadership from UC Davis. He has served on many accreditation site evaluation teams and is experienced in organizing high-quality work processes through policies and procedures. His expertise in information technology is a timely fit for us as MPC needs to move forward, when possible, with a new "ERP" (software that integrates the operations of the college). No stranger to MPC, Steve has been working as a professional expert during the Fall Semester. He understands our school and is able to hit the ground running. (Steve also plays the harmonica with some serious soul.)

We are very pleased to add Steve to our executive team and will be holding a reception for Steve and his family to meet the campus and community on Thursday, 2/4/2016 from 5:00-6:30 in the Sam Karas Room. I hope to see you all there.

Please join me in welcoming Dr. Steve Crow to MPC!

Best,

Dr. T.

Subject: Happy Holidays MPC!

Dear MPC,

Just a note to say THANK YOU to our faculty, staff, administration, and trustees who all work toward the goal of providing quality education for our students and communities. In this season that inspires hope and caring for others, I am struck by the parallels in what we do every day. You literally help students achieve their dreams and, importantly, believe in themselves so they are empowered to lead a confident and successful life.

So as you experience the holidays in your own personal way, do so confident in the knowledge that your chosen professions, your personal industry and effort actually inspires and actually helps create hope for others.

It is an honor and a privilege to work with you.

Happy Holidays MPC!

Dr. T.

Local roundup: MPC women win first of season

By Herald staff

Daniela Villegas scored 16 points Thursday night in Monterey Peninsula College's 67-41 win over L.A. Pierce in the Cuesta College women's basketball tournament.

Lillian Dawkins added 12 points for MPC, while Monae Hobson finished with 11.

The victory was the first of the year for the Lobos, who opened the season with four straight defeats.

Men's basketball preview: MPC sophomores stepping up their games

By John Devine

No one felt the harsh transition from high school to college basketball more last year than Chris Evans and Kyle Hieb at Monterey Peninsula College.

The pair struggled for playing time while adjusting to the speed and physicality of the game.

While their confidence may have been shaken from the lack of playing time, it also pushed them to enhance their games by working on their weaknesses, including the mental aspect.

No longer overwhelmed, the game has slowed down for the two Seaside High graduates and former members of The Herald's All-County team.

Evans, The Herald's Basketball Player of the Year in 2013, was averaging 8.5 points a game off the bench through MPC's first five games this year, up from 1.8 last year.

Hieb, whose scoring average is up nearly six points a game, gives the Lobos a sharpshooter on the outside, forcing teams to come out and defend beyond the 3-point arc.

If there was one person who didn't seem fazed from the transition last year, it was Isaac Clark, who dropped in 14.9 points a game for the Lobos.

While Clark has been nursing a sore ankle in the preseason, when he's on the court, he is an impact player, averaging nearly 17 points a game.

As a team, MPC is averaging nearly five points a game more this year, despite not having Clark for two games.

Sophomore Deondre Otis has elevated his game this season, dropping in 16 points a game, more than double his average from last season.

So too has Jazz Bajwa, who has gone from 3.2 points a game to 12 points this season. A former three-time all-leaguer at Irvington High in Fremont, the guard is a highlight reel when dunking.

With no true center listed on the roster, MPC is going to run a three-guard, two-forward offense that will get up and down the court.

A concern for the Lobos in the preseason was finishing games. The Lobos blew halftime leads in two of their first three losses.

Local roundup: MPC men beat Hartnell in West Valley Tournament

By Herald staff

A near triple-double from Deondre Otis on Friday lifted the Monterey Peninsula College men's basketball team to a dramatic 77-71 overtime win over rival Hartnell in the West Valley Tournament in Saratoga.

Otis finished with a team-high 20 points, 11 rebounds and seven assists for the Lobos, who have won five in a row and are 9-5 overall.

Isaac Clark added 13 points and seven rebounds for MPC. Former Seaside High standout Kyle Hieb tallied 12 points and six boards, while Isaiah Brown had 11 points and six rebounds.

Hartnell, which has already surpassed last year's entire win total, fell to 7-4.
